

The Falkland Society

Bryan Dickson is our speaker for November. He will be talking about 'The Hill House, conservation challenges of a modern masterpiece'.

(Also: Peter Jones's exhibition of paintings of Falkland continues at The Stables – see below).

7 p.m. Wednesday 20 November, at the Chapel Royal, Falkland Palace

Note: please bring a torch, as you will be entering and exiting the property via the turret door on the lawn.

Bryan Dickson is a Conservation Accredited Chartered Building Surveyor, and the Head of Buildings Conservation (Policy) at the National Trust for Scotland. He has a Masters Degree in Building

Charles Rennie Mackintosh's Hill House (1903) has been beset by problems owing to the nature of the materials chosen, and especially a cement-based harling. Currently it is covered by an immense

Peter Jones is an artist working in pen and watercolour. Working on the spot, his drawings are alive, carefully observed but with the freedom and spontaneity inherent in this way of working. The current exhibition at the Stables Gallery, Falkland, showcases the paintings which feature in his book Falkland, a book of paintings to be launched on 8 December.

Full details of the exhibition can be found on the Centre For Stewardship's website.
And you can order copies of the book at a discount through Crowdfunder.
